The Division of Weights and Measures scale certification clinics scheduled through the end of April 2020 have been canceled due to COVID-19 mandates. The clinics scheduled for May and June will take place unless we are directed otherwise. At this point, it is not feasible to offer single appointments for scale certification so do not bring your scale/s to the NHDAMF office in Concord. The building is currently closed to the public. Weights and Measures will do their best to reschedule any scale clinics that have been canceled.

For new licensees, and anyone wanting to have their scales certified before the scale clinics are rescheduled, a list of service companies is found on our website at (<https://www.agriculture.nh.gov/divisions/weights-measures/businesses.htm>). The scale company will certify the scale/s for a fee (which we do not regulate) and they will provide you with a copy of the inspection report. New licensees should send a copy of the inspection report along with a completed license application found at (<https://www.agriculture.nh.gov/publications-forms/documents/device-application.pdf>). PLEASE NOTE: If a scale is certified by a private company, a separate certification is not necessary by NHDAMF.

For licensees whose scales were certified in 2018, you must have your scale/s certified before any commercial transaction takes place over the scale/s. Because it is not known when the scale clinics will be rescheduled, you may need to have your scale certified by a licensed service company.

For licensees whose scales were certified in 2019, you may delay certification until the scale clinics are rescheduled. If you are unable to attend a scale clinic, you are still required to have your scale/s certified in 2020 by a licensed service technician; which has always been an option.

All licensees must have a current scale license in order to operate. Licensees should receive an annual renewal from the division. If your license has expired or is about to expire, please contact the division immediately.
